

Summary of Changes to the Hull War Risks and Strikes Clauses (Form 87B-108)

Hull War Risks and Strikes Clauses (Form 87C-108)

Several changes have been made in the December 1, 1977 form (87B-108), which has been renumbered 87C-108 and redated September 29, 2009.

1. The provisions of April 1, 1984 Addendum (Form SP-108C) have been incorporated into the new clauses. Principally, this consists of adding confiscation and expropriation as named insured perils, as well as the language in the Addendum relating to loss of the vessel for more than twelve (12) months and the definition of “restraint.” Consistent with the Addendum, the cancellation notice period is shortened from fourteen (14) to seven (7) days. Accordingly, the April 1, 1984 Addendum will no longer be needed in conjunction with the War Risks and Strikes Clauses.
2. The two new terrorism clauses in the War Strikes and Related Exclusions of the AIHC hull form (lines 334-337) are carried over into the War Risks and Strikes Clauses, clarifying that terrorism is included in the war risk cover.
3. “Telegraphic” notice in the Automatic Termination and Cancellation Clauses has been changed to “electronic.”
4. Piracy is added as a specifically enumerated peril, to conform with the War Strikes and Related Exclusions clause in the AIHC hull form, clarifying that piracy is included in the war risk cover.
